

CMI Certified Facilitator Training

Materials

The Crisis Management Institute Facilitator Training fee includes the following materials in support the process of the training.

The Facilitator Activity Booklet

Each segment of the Facilitator Training includes watching a 15-minute video and then breaking into small groups of around 5 people. There is an activity for that portion of the segment. Facilitators will be provided with a booklet that contains those activities.

Crisis Resource Manual

Because all who take the Facilitator Training will have completed a three-day workshop, all should already have a Crisis Resource Manual. It is helpful to bring it with you to training sessions so you can refer to it at will.

When Facilitators Lead Training Sessions

Access to the Videos

Access to videos will be opened three weeks before your first scheduled training session so you'll have the chance to review them if you wish. Access continues two weeks after your last session to allow for make-up sessions.

The Participant Activity Booklet (may be PDF or hard copy)

Although the videos used to train Facilitators are the same videos used by Facilitators to train participants, the focus of the discussions and activities is different. For instance, when becoming a Facilitator, it is important to reflect on the importance of various aspects of the training to administrators. For participants just learning to become Flight Team members, activities are more narrowly focused on how to meet the needs of staff and students in the immediate aftermath.

Crisis Resource Manual

Participants who take training from Facilitators will receive a Crisis Resource Manual, the cost of which is included in their registration fee. These will be mailed in bulk to the Facilitator, who handles distribution to participants.
